Re-Introducing Non-Profit Housing

The new German coalition government of Social Democrats, Greens, and Liberals, established after the fall 2021 elections, announced a huge national housing program with some 400,000 new homes to be built annually, 10,000 of them in the affordable not for profit sector. According to Bundesbauministerin (National Construction and Housing Minister) Klara Geywitz from the Social Democrats this will include the re-introduction of a non-profit housing sector which existed in Germany before 1990, to “stop private housing speculation” and rising rents.
